LeadWest Seeks Government Support for Initiative to Support the Creation of New or Additional Business Capacity

Leadwest sought government views on whether the present joint Federal / State initiative to support the creation of new or additional business capacity via the SA Innovation & Investment Fund and the Geelong Innovation & Investment Fund, would become a template for other regions wishing to secure the growth of sustainable new jobs and creating new or additional business capacity into areas particularly adversely impacted by looming "business closures".

The Western suburbs of Melbourne have been adversely impacted by the impacts of globalisation over recent times and of course now much accelerated on the back of the global financial crisis. Rising unemployment levels brought about by a number of significant plant closures in the western suburbs have added to the socio economic malaise of this region. As such LeadWest believes a case could be made for such regionally focused business stimulus funds to become the template for driving the innovation agenda for manufacturing elsewhere and that such a program should be created for Melbourne's western suburbs.

LeadWest Seeks Government Support for Local Employment Co-ordinators

The Prime Minister recently announcement that the Federal Government was looking at appointing Local Employment Co-ordinators to marshal training, infrastructure and Jobs Fund investments to maximise job opportunities in local communities hit hardest by the effects of the global recession. To support this the Government is providing $20.8 million for Local Employment Co-ordinators to work in regions and communities affected by higher unemployment and job losses.

The seven regions already identified were determined by using a range of labour market and social indicators with further regions to be identified and hopefully Melbourne's western suburbs will be amongst those additional regions. LeadWest has written to Min. Brendan O'Connor trying to secure for the western suburbs of Melbourne just such an employment coordinator as it was not in the initial seven regions identified.

These Local Employment Co-ordinators will be doubly important as they will also work with the identified communities to access funds under the $650 million Jobs Fund and to develop projects that will create employment, training opportunities and deliver new infrastructure and services.
